

The NSW Women in Economics Network committee are delighted to announce the winners of the 2025 Credible Economist Writing Competition.

Winning Entries:

- First Place: Marianna Athanassiadis
Title: What does it mean to be a good mother
- Second Place: Eloise Baird
Title: High school Economics: Declining Enrolments and the Impact of Business Cycle Fluctuations
- Third Place: Linh Trinh
Title: The Price of Pink: What's the Real Cost of Being a Woman?

Highly commended:

In addition to our top three winners, we would like to extend our heartfelt congratulations to the following participants for their exceptional contributions:

- Ila Shrivastava – Have the gender roles evolved in women's favour?
- Neha Pathman – Like, Share, Buy: The Power of Women in TikTok's Attention Economy
- Julia Ades – Is there a need for menstruation/menopause leave in the Australian workplace?

Thank you to all participants for the quality submissions. Our judges were impressed by the overall quality of applications and were delighted by the range of topics covered, diversity of views presented and the ability to present well researched economic articles in an engaging and thoughtful manner.

Stay tuned, these articles will be published on WEN Credible Economist Blog over the coming weeks. We are proud to spotlight the brilliance that resides within the Women in Economics Network.

Congratulations to our winners and all participants!